Chair’s Report

Despite the extraordinary pressures placed on cultural organisations like The Australian Society of Authors during the COVID-19 pandemic, the last year has shown the resilience and importance of the Society for our members. The ASA made it our priority to ensure we were able to continue to support you, no matter what stage of your career. We navigated this by keeping you informed about Government support where it was available, diversifying and digitising professional development opportunities, introducing a #ShopLocal campaign with the support of Australian booksellers, showcasing debut authors whose book launches were cancelled, conducting a sweeping review of the Contract Assessment Service and continuing our advocacy for the rights of authors and illustrators.

Since the last Annual General Meeting we have continued to take the key issues facing authors and illustrators to Canberra, meeting with representatives in government and across the parliament and attending industry roundtables to ensure your voice is heard when it comes to digital lending rights, copyright and public funding for literature.

The ASA Board is deeply disappointed at the lack of action from the Australian Government on the issue of digital lending rights. Quite frankly, the inaction of the government on an issue that has widespread support from authors, illustrators, publishers and libraries is deplorable. We will keep the pressure on key decision makers in the lead up to the next election and beyond, to ensure we get the outcome that authors and illustrators deserve.

Similarly, the ASA Board remains intent on reminding government that authors and illustrators remain among the most underpaid creators in Australia and that funding for literature ought to be increased to ensure a healthy talent pipeline into the future. We support a new national arts and culture plan, as recently recommended by the House of Representatives Standing Committee of Communication and the Arts, and call for that plan to recognise the fundamental importance of investing in our nation’s storytellers and artists, who sit at the heart of the arts sector.

According to the ASA’s 2020 survey: author’s earnings are critically low: 80% of respondents are earning less than $15,000 per annum, and the book industry is very crowded with an extremely long tail: 99% of all titles released in 2018, 2019 and up to October 2020 sold less than 1,000 copies each in that year.

While these challenges are not new, experienced writers are reporting to us that today it’s tougher than ever. Authors have long accepted the need to develop a portfolio career as a writer, but with global competition, lower advances, discount sales, fewer freelance opportunities due to the disruption of the print media, and the significant reduction in event opportunities due to COVID, midlist authors are under huge pressure.

This is an issue that deserves government attention. If Australia wants a thriving literature sector, now is the time to invest in the development and creation of great Australian stories.

The way we need to keep prosecuting these arguments on behalf of the membership is to raise the profile of the Society, not only across the literary sector, but with government and the public. We will do this by pursuing more public campaigns through the media and online, growing our ASA Ambassadors program, and by attracting a diverse range of excellent Board directors to help shape the future of our industry.

This year we farewell from the board directors Liz Anelli, Helen O’Neill, Anne Maria Nicholson and Melissa Lukashenko. Each of these directors have served the Society with generosity, passion and a love of the ASA, its members, and its work. I would like to thank each of them for the work they have put into the Society over so many years combined. Your contribution to the ASA is immeasurable and we thank you all.

I would also like to thank the work of the entire Board, including the Executive Committee, the Investment Committee, the Fundraising Committee and the Nominations Committee who do so much behind the scenes to ensure the smooth running of the ASA.

And finally, I would like to acknowledge CEO Olivia Lanchester who is in her second year as CEO. Olivia is an outstanding leader of the ASA and is steering the organisation through a very difficult period, working tirelessly to ensure the ASA has a bright future that is relevant and exciting. I would like to thank Olivia and the extraordinary staff of the ASA who make our organisation a world-leader in support, advocacy and policy. What you do with such a small team is a credit to you all.

I look forward to an even more active and productive year ahead.

CEO’s Report

The last year has been turbulent for authors. Despite some authors enjoying very strong sales over a bumper Christmas 2020, we are acutely aware of the many authors who’ve reported to us ongoing challenges posed by COVID-19: restrictions in NSW, Victoria, Queensland, ACT and South Australia, disrupted trading in bookstores, cancelled Book Week arrangements, cancelled event opportunities at schools or festivals, interruptions to international book fairs, reduced promotional opportunities for new titles, and the effect of anxiety and isolation on creativity.

The impact of COVID-19 has not been felt uniformly among authors, with debut novelists hit particularly hard, and nor has it been experienced evenly by booksellers. Online retailers are reporting strong profits while independent bookstores have had to temporarily close their doors, or pivot to click and collect sales. We were so pleased to hear recently that book sales surged as bookshops reopened in New South Wales, with the week ending 16 October breaking sales records for this time of year over the last decade. We hope that the increased reading we’ve seen during stay-at-home orders will continue into 2022, and we will do our best to support and amplify the Australian Booksellers’ Association’s upcoming ‘While You Were Gone’ campaign to spotlight Australian authors and illustrators.

Given these ups and downs, the ASA has come through the year well, experiencing a growth in participation for all our services and in membership numbers. Our audited accounts show an operating profit of just under $150,000, with roughly half this profit coming from increased income from activities and the other half coming from membership growth. This profit was assisted by low expenses, largely due to savings in office, travel and salary costs. I am very proud of the stability we’ve achieved through tight financial management and tireless work from our passionate and skilled staff. The ASA hasn’t received organisational funding for 6 years. Apart from small amounts for project funding, we rely on membership revenue and income from activities to operate. We are a financially self-supporting organisation, re-investing any profits in member services.

Last year, we set ourselves the target of a strong profit so that we could invest in a new and improved Contract Assessment Service in 2022 and employ much-needed additional staff. I am thrilled we met our target and are now able to deliver on both these objectives.

Highlights of the 20/21 financial year include:

The launch of seven new resources, including new comprehensive FAQs on our website, a new guide titled Authors Wills and Literary Estates, and updated protocols for writers, illustrators and publishers when writing about Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander people, or their Indigenous Cultural and Intellectual Property (ICIP). We warmly thank Terri Janke and Company for drafting this guide.

An amplified professional development program, including 6 free information sessions throughout the year. We’re pleased that our program is now entirely digital with all sessions accessible anywhere in Australia. We’ve also started recording our workshops so if the time of the event isn’t convenient for you, you can watch a recording of it for a limited time.

An increase of 46% in the number of mentorships, and new mentors added to our Mentor Register.

The ASA commencing its Reconciliation journey, committing to a REFLECT Reconciliation Action Plan.

A focus on advocacy on behalf of our members as summarised on pages 17-20.

The ASA has continued to support Untapped: Australian Literary Heritage Project, a library ebook lending pilot program, delivered by the University of Melbourne in collaboration with Australian public libraries and authors. This project has digitised important out-of-print Australian books where the rights have reverted to the authors. Authors are licensing their works into public libraries for digital lending, as well as making them available for sale as ebooks. The participating authors will receive payments from libraries on loans as well as royalties on any retail sales. Libraries around Australia will promote the titles to their readers.

After months of working for home, our staff are all back in the office. I warmly thank the members of the ASA team: Lauren Anderson, Lucy Hayward, Jodie Sperri-James, Angeles Galvez and Diana Chamma. Throughout a somewhat disjointed year, they have put in long hours to ensure seamless delivery of services to members. I am grateful to them for their diligence, hard work, and humour, and for making coming to work such a pleasure.

I also thank the ASA Board for its insights and vision. Our directors are incredibly generous with their time and serve on the Board to give back to their community. In particular, my warm thanks to the Chair, Nick Pickard, who has spent the last two COVID-affected years tirelessly advocating for creators across the entire arts sector, and who has spearheaded the ASA’s increased advocacy.

Lastly, thank you to all members for your loyalty and support, upon which we utterly depend. You are the lynchpin and heart of the book industry. Please contact us anytime. We are only ever a phone call or email away and we’re here to support you.

ASA Literary Speed Dating is one of the best opportunities out there for emerging Australian writers to connect with agents and publishers. I met my wonderful agent Sarah McKenzie at the December 2020 event, and less than six months later I was in talks with publishers. My crime fiction novel WAKE will come out with Hachette Australia on 31 May 2022.

Even if I had not made a match, my participation in Literary Speed Dating would have been well worth it. It gave me the motivation to polish my pitch, and the real-time feedback and reactions were invaluable. When it came time to pitch to publishers, I had a package ready to go, and the confidence that I had it right.

So long as you are ascribing things to, and categorising women you are denying the complexity of their humanity. When girls are children up until the moment they become sex objects, not allowed a safe adolescence, you deny them their humanity. When women of colour are exoticised and made into things that can be conquered, you are denying them their humanity. When mothers are either ‘good’ or ‘bad’ depending purely on how self-sacrificial they are, you are denying their humanity. When older women are invisibilised or silenced and disregarded because either you don’t find them sexy anymore, or they can’t bear your sons, you are denying their humanity. And if a work of literature cannot capture something of humanity, then it’s just not good. It is our responsibility as writers, and readers, and publishers, and booksellers to say to any writer who either doesn’t get, let alone doesn’t really like women, not good enough. Not good enough for our awards, and not good enough for our lists.

Inquiry into Creative and Cultural Industries and Institutions

In October 2020, the ASA made a major submission to the House of Representatives Standing Committee’s Inquiry into Creative and Cultural Industries and Institutions. In this submission, the ASA set out the deep economic and non-economic impact of Australian literature.

We called attention to the crisis in author earnings, and highlighted that despite reading being the second-most popular way Australians engage with the arts, literature receives the lowest level of funding of all the major art forms. In our submission we identified 6 steps to assist the sustainability of Australian literature:

1. The introduction of a 3-tier Boost Package for Literature over 3-5 years
2. The modernisation of the eligibility criteria for Australia’s lending rights schemes (PLR/ELR) to include digital formats (ebooks and audiobooks)
3. The introduction of author-centric provisions into the Copyright Act to level a playing field which has become unbalanced
4. An increase in the funding available for strategic investment by Australia Council, informed by an overall federal strategic plan for literature
5. The reinstatement of the book industry in analysis conducted by the Australian Bureau of Statistics
6. The removal of tax on literature prizes

The Standing Committee has recently released its report in response to the Inquiry: Sculpting a National Cultural Plan; igniting a post-Covid economy for the arts.

The bipartisan report included 22 recommendations, underpinned by a recognition of the fundamental importance of the arts in our society. The ASA welcomed many of these recommendations, in particular the recommendation for a national cultural plan, and the review of the lending rights schemes, both of which were included in our submission to the Federal Inquiry.

Read our Submission here.

Digital Lending Rights

We have continued our campaign to expand the lending rights schemes (PLR / ELR) to include digital formats (ebooks and audiobooks). In addition to writing to the Minister for the Arts and encouraging our members to write to their local MPs:

- On 19 February 2021, authors Melissa Lucashenko, Nick Earls and Olivia Lanchester appeared at a public inquiry for the Creative and Cultural Industries and Institutions Inquiry.
- On 14 April 2021, Nick Pickard and Olivia Lanchester met with Emma McBride MP to discuss our submission to the Creative and Cultural Industries and Institutions Inquiry.
- On 30 April, director and author Kirsty Murray and Olivia Lanchester appeared at the Australian Digital Alliance conference to call for digital lending rights.

“Public and Educational Lending Rights have been instrumental in supporting Australian writers to both progress and sustain their careers. Personally, it was a great support to me early on, affording me the time to learn and build my trade. It was during that period I wrote The Book Thief, which couldn’t have been accomplished without those PLR and ELR incentives. The rewards for my previous work being in both public and school libraries was one more component that helped me push on, and to keep my ambitions alive - to be read not only here at home, but also throughout the world. Expanding towards a Digital Lending Right in parallel with digital reading and borrowing trends only makes perfect sense. It holds one more key to a promise - that upcoming Australian writers might have the same opportunities I had.”

- Markus Zusak
Industry Resolution on Reversion of Rights
Following campaigning by the ASA over the last financial year, the Australian Publishers Association (APA) has agreed to amend its Member Code of Conduct to improve the recommendations around termination/reversion clauses in publishing contracts. The Code now recommends that publishers include reversion clauses in publishing contracts that are based on clear and objective thresholds.

For example:

• when sales have dropped below an agreed defined level, as shown on one or two consecutive royalty statements, or
• when royalties have dropped below an agreed defined level, as shown on one or two consecutive royalty statements.

This is a welcome step forward from traditional arrangements where authors have reverted rights to their work once the work has been ‘out of print’ for a period of time or where the work is ‘not available in any edition’. Since the advent of ebooks and print-on-demand technology, it’s possible that works never go out of print and are always available in at least one edition.

Many Australian publishers have already recognised that the ‘out of print’ approach is obsolete and moved to include objective thresholds to trigger rights reversion in their publishing contracts. The update to the APA’s Code of Conduct encourages all publishers to move to this same standard, and represents a breakthrough in industry collaboration, for the benefit of all authors.

Copyright Access Reforms
In August 2020, Minister Paul Fletcher announced a range of copyright access reforms. These include:

• the introduction of:
  o a limited liability scheme for use of orphan works
  o a new fair dealing exception for non-commercial quotation
• the amendment and expansion of the:
  o library and archives exceptions
  o education exceptions
• some changes to the government statutory licensing scheme

While some of the proposed reforms were the subject of prior consultation and were relatively uncontroversial, the announcement included proposed changes to the educational statutory licence administered by Copyright Agency which alarmed creators.

Supported by the ASA, Copyright Agency led the advocacy on behalf of authors and publishers to resist a campaign to undermine the educational statutory licence. Local content creators agree there are important steps to modernise copyright in Australia, but we have advocated for legislation which supports a sustainable and thriving local creative sector. We will report to the membership once we have seen the draft legislation, due to be released soon.

Internet Archive
Over the last year, we have continued our objections to the practices of Internet Archive. The ‘Open Library’ managed by the Internet Archive was recently again making headlines when the National Library of New Zealand made the decision to donate hundreds of thousands of books from their Overseas Publications Collection, many of which are still in copyright, to the Internet Archive. These include books by Helen Garner, Frank Moorhouse, Gerald Murnane, Sally Morgan, David Malouf, Colin Thiele, Mem Fox, Tim Winton and more.

The ASA has no objection to the sharing of any out-of-copyright works, for which permission is no longer necessary but for in-copyright works, we consider Internet Archive to facilitate copyright infringement as it scans physical books and then makes those digitised copies freely available for lending to users around the world, without permission from or payment to creators.

This is in contrast to standard public library practices, under which publishers are paid a retail price for either a print book or ebook licence, a portion of which is on-paid to authors/illustrators.

Internet Archive has been roundly condemned by international publishers and authors’ groups, and a copyright infringement lawsuit has been brought against them by US publishers Hachette, Penguin Random House, HarperCollins and John Wiley.

We are pleased to report that in light of objections from author and publisher organisations internationally, NZNL is reconsidering its decision to donate books to the Internet Archive.
The Year Ahead

For the financial year 2021-22, we are planning:

• The Colin Simpson Memorial Lecture in March 2022

• The launch of our new Contract Assessment Service

• The launch of substantial new resources, including The ASA’s Guide to Getting Published

• Based on feedback from our 2021 Annual Survey, an amplified professional development program which will cover topical issues, your creative business, honing your craft, and information sessions for emerging and established authors

• An overhaul of our website and database with increased access to information for every stage of your career - conditional on government funding
Treasurer’s Report

I am pleased to present the Annual General Meeting’s Treasurer’s report for the year to June 30, 2021. In the face of rolling lockdowns and a challenging economic environment, the ASA has increased membership, offered innovative services to Australian writers and illustrators and advocated for the literary arts, bringing expenses in well below budget and exceeding projected earnings.

Once again, the auditors have given the ASA a clean bill of health. The ASA’s 2021 annual budget, approved in May 2020 at the height of the first lockdowns, was conservative and streamlined anticipating severe economic impacts from the pandemic. As we approach the second-year milestone of COVID-19, our astute CEO, Olivia Lanchester, and her hard-working team have delivered outstanding financial results. Thanks to the CEO’s careful management of expenses and the team’s increased revenue generating activities, the ASA has finished the 2020-21 financial year with a record surplus of $149,801. The ASA is now in a firm position to employ much-needed additional staff and extend services to our members.

Revenue
Income generated from activities increased by 40% to $147,246. It’s worth noting that these activities not only offer professional development to our members but also create employment opportunities for Australian writers who are contracted by the ASA to mentor, educate and share their expertise.

Over the course of the year, membership of the ASA grew from 3,325 to 3,659 generating an increase in subscriptions revenue of $49,387 (10.7% increase). Publications revenue also increased from $22,111 to $28,312 (28% increase) thanks to the creation of new resources.

Expenses
Operating expenses were lower than budgeted. As in 2020, savings were made on expenditure associated with events, salary costs, board meetings and office overheads. Due to border restrictions, all board meetings were held on Zoom, saving on director’s travel costs.

Highlights
• The ASA posted an Operating Profit of $149,801. This is comfortably ahead of budget, thanks to increased revenue from every revenue stream including memberships, activities and publications, plus savings in costs
• Membership grew by 334 members over the course of the financial year
• Total Expenses of $674,759 were under budget by $11,000 (1.6%). This result is largely due to a fall in office and general expenses and salary savings
• As at 30 June, 2021, equity stood at $2,116,501

Investment Committee
The Investment Committee oversees the management of The Barbara Jefferis Award Fund, the Endowment Fund and the Investment Fund. This committee is made up of three ASA directors, and two independent individuals with governance experience. Financial advisors Minchin Moore are engaged to manage the ASA’s portfolios. The Barbara Jefferis Award Fund was independently audited with positive results.

The overall performance of ASA investments to June 30, 2021 exceeded our target growth of CPI +3.25% to end the financial year with a gain of CPI +4.4% on each of the three ASA portfolios.

During the financial year, the Investment Committee reviewed the ESG guidelines in our Investment Policy and Strategy document. In consultation with Minchin Moore, the ASA investment portfolios were rebalanced to meet stringent ESG standards.

Fundraising Committee
The newly formed Fundraising Committee met twice to June 30th and consulted with fundraising specialists to develop strategies to drive donations. Changes to the ASA website resulted in an increase to member donations. Historically, bequests have enhanced the financial security of the ASA. On the instigation of the Fundraising Committee, a solicitor was engaged to create a ‘will kit’ to advise members on how to ensure their copyright is dealt with appropriately for the sake of their heirs. The ASA humbly encourages members and potential benefactors to consider including a bequest to the ASA in their will. The Fundraising Committee looks forward to developing a wide range of initiatives and activities to further support the ASA.

Conclusion
As Treasurer, I congratulate and thank the ASA’s management and staff for their tireless work and expert financial management in yet another challenging year. The ASA is now in a secure position to employ new staff, expand services and increase advocacy to the benefit of all Australian writers and illustrators.

Notes to the Financial Statements
For the Year Ended 30 June 2021

The financial report covers The Australian Society of Authors Limited as an individual entity. The Australian Society of Authors Limited is a not-for-profit company limited by guarantee, incorporated and domiciled in Australia.

The functional and presentation currency of The Australian Society of Authors Limited is Australian dollars.

Comparatives have been adjusted where required to comply with changes in the current period.

1 Basis of Preparations

The Directors have prepared financial statements on the basis that the company is a non-reporting entity because there are no users dependent on general purpose financial statements. These financial statements are therefore special purpose financial statements that have been prepared in order to meet the reporting requirements of the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012.

The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with the recognition and measurement requirements of the Australian Accounting Standards and Accounting Interpretations, and the disclosure requirements of AASB 101 Presentation of Financial Statements, AASB 107 Statement of Cash Flows, AASB 108 Accounting Policies, Changes in Accounting Estimates and Errors, AASB 1049 Interpretation of Standards and AASB 1054 Australian Additional Disclosures.

The financial statements, except for the cash flow information, have been prepared on an accruals basis and are based on historical costs unless otherwise stated in the notes. Material accounting policies adopted in the preparation of these financial statements are presented below and have been consistently applied unless stated otherwise. The amounts presented in the financial statements have been rounded to the nearest dollar.

2 Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(a) Income Tax

The company is exempt from income tax under Division 50 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1987.

(b) Revenue and other income

Revenue from contracts with customers

The core principle of AASB 15 is that revenue is recognised on a basis that reflects the transfer of promised goods or services to customers at an amount that reflects the consideration the company expects to receive in exchange for those goods or services. Revenue is recognised by applying a five-step model as follows:

1. Identify the contract with the customer
2. Identify the performance obligations
3. Determine the transaction price
4. Allocate the transaction price to the performance obligations
5. Recognise revenue as and when control of the performance obligations is transferred
2 Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Revenue from contracts with customers

Generally, the timing of the payment for the sale of goods and rendering of services corresponds closely to the timing of satisfaction of the performance obligations, however, where there is a difference, it will result in the recognition of a receivable, contract asset or contract liability.

None of the revenue streams of the company have any significant financing terms as there is less than 12 months between receipt of funds and satisfaction of performance obligations.

Specific revenue streams

The revenue recognition policies for the principal revenue streams of the company are:

Member Subscriptions

Revenue from the provision of membership subscriptions is recognised on a straight-line basis over the financial year.

Activities

Activities include revenue from contract assessment services, mentorship, Style File and professional development. Revenue from activities is recognised at a point in time when the relevant performance obligation is satisfied.

Grants

Revenue from grants is recognised at a point in time when the company has satisfied its performance obligations under the relevant grant agreement.

Statement of financial position balances relating to revenue recognition

Contract assets and liabilities

Where the amounts billed to customers are based on the achievement of various milestones established in the contract, the amounts recognised as revenue in a given period do not necessarily coincide with the amounts billed or certified by the customer.

When a performance obligation is satisfied by transferring a promised good or service to the customer before the customer pays consideration or before payment is due, the company presents the contract as a contract asset, unless the company’s right to that amount of consideration are unconditional, in which case the company recognises a receivable.

When an amount of consideration is received from a customer prior to the entity transferring a good or service to the customer, the company presents the contract as a contract liability.
2. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(d) Property, Plant and Equipment

Each class of property, plant and equipment is carried at cost or fair value less, where applicable, any accumulated depreciation and impairment losses.

Where the cost model is used, the asset is carried at its cost less any accumulated depreciation and any impairment losses. Costs include purchase price, other directly attributable costs and the initial estimate of the costs of dismantling and restoring the asset, where applicable.

Assets measured using the revaluation model are carried at fair value at the revaluation date less any subsequent accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Revaluations are performed periodically, but at least triennially, by external independent valuers.

Land and buildings

Land and buildings are measured using the revaluation model.

Plant and equipment

Plant and equipment are measured using the cost model.

Depreciation

Plant and equipment is depreciated on a straight-line basis over the asset useful life to the company, commencing when the asset is ready for use.

(e) Financial instruments

Financial instruments are recognised initially on the date that the company becomes party to the contractual provisions of the instrument.

On initial recognition, all financial instruments are measured at fair value plus transaction costs (except for instruments measured at fair value through profit or loss where transaction costs are expensed as incurred).

Financial assets

All recognised financial assets are subsequently measured in their entirety at either amortised cost or fair value, depending on the classification of the financial assets.
2 Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Financial assets

Dividends are recognised as income in profit or loss unless the dividend clearly represents a recovery of part of the cost of the investment. Other net gains and losses are recognised in OCI.

Fair value through profit or loss

The company does not have any financial assets through profit or loss.

Impairment of financial assets

Impairment of financial assets is recognised on an expected credit loss (ECL) basis for the following assets:

- financial assets measured at amortised cost

A loss allowance is not recognised for equity instruments measured at FVOCI.

When determining whether the credit risk of a financial assets has increased significant since initial recognition and when estimating ECL, the company considers reasonable and supportable information that is relevant and available without undue cost or effort. This includes both quantitative and qualitative information and analysis based on the company’s historical experience and informed credit assessment and including forward looking information.

The company uses the presumption that an asset which is more than 30 days past due has seen a significant increase in credit risk.

Trade receivables

Impairment of trade receivables have been determined using the simplified approach in AASB 9 which uses an estimation of lifetime expected credit losses. The company has determined the probability of non-payment of the receivable and multiplied this by the amount of the expected loss arising from default.

The amount of the impairment is recorded in a separate allowance account with the loss being recognised in finance expense. Once the receivable is determined to be uncollectable then the gross carrying amount is written off against the associated allowance.

Where the company renegotiates the terms of trade receivables due from certain customers, the new expected cash flows are discounted at the original effective interest rate and any resulting difference to the carrying value is recognised in profit or loss.

Other financial assets measured at amortised cost

Impairment of other financial assets measured at amortised cost are determined using the expected credit loss model in AASB 9. On initial recognition of the asset, an estimate of the expected credit losses for the next 12 months is recognised. Where the asset has experienced significant increase in credit risk then the lifetime losses are estimated and recognised.
2 Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(b) Employee benefits

Provision is made for the company's liability for employee benefits arising from services rendered by employees to the end of the reporting period. Employee benefits that are expected to be wholly settled within one year have been measured at the amounts expected to be paid when the liability is settled.

Employee benefits expected to be settled more than twelve months after the end of the reporting period have been measured at the present value of the estimated future cash outflows to be made for those benefits. In determining the liability, consideration is given to employee wage increases and the probability that the employee may satisfy vesting requirements.

Employee benefits are presented as current liabilities in the statement of financial position if the company does not have an unconditional right to defer settlement of the liability for at least 12 months after the reporting date regardless of the classification of the liability for measurement purposes under AASB 119.

(i) Adoption of new and revised accounting standards

The company has adopted all of the new, revised or amending Accounting Standards and Interpretations issued by the Australian Accounting Standards Board (AASB) that are mandatory for the current reporting period.

Any new, revised or amending Accounting Standards and Interpretations that are not yet mandatory have not been early adopted.

The adoption of these accounting standards has not materially impacted the measurement or disclosure of any transaction for the company.

3 Critical Accounting Estimates and Judgments

The directors make estimates and judgements during the preparation of these financial statements regarding assumptions about current and future events affecting transactions and balances.

These estimates and judgements are based on the best information available at the time of preparing the financial statements; however, as additional information is known then the actual results may differ from the estimates.

The significant estimates and judgements made have been described below.

Key estimates - impairment of property, plant and equipment

The company assesses impairment at the end of each reporting period by evaluating conditions specific to the company that may be indicative of impairment triggers. Recoverable amounts of relevant assets are reassessed using value in use calculations which incorporate various key assumptions.

Independent Auditor’s Report to the members of The Australian Society of Authors Limited

Opinion

We have audited the accompanying financial report, being a special purpose financial report of The Australian Society of Authors Limited, which comprises the statement of financial position as at 30 June 2021, the statement of profit or loss and other comprehensive income, the statement of changes in equity and the statement of cash flows for the year then ended, and notes to the financial statements, including a summary of significant accounting policies, and the director's declaration.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial report of the company is in accordance with the Australian Accounting Standards, as at 30 June 2021 and of its financial performance for the year then ended, and:

(i) giving a true and fair view of the company's financial position as at 30 June 2021 and of its financial performance for the year then ended; and

(ii) complying with Australian Accounting Standards to the extent described in Note 1 and the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Regulation 2013.

Basis for Opinion

We conducted our audit in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards. Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor’s Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Report section of our report. We are independent of the company in accordance with the auditor independence requirements of the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012 and the ethical requirements of the Accounting Professional and Ethical Standards Board’s APES 110 Code of Ethics for Professional Accountants (the Code) that are relevant to our audit of the financial report in Australia. We have also fulfilled our other ethical responsibilities in accordance with the Code.

We confirm that the independence declaration required by the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012, which has been given to the directors of the company, would be in the same terms, if given to the directors at the time of this auditor’s report.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion.

Emphasis of Matter - Basis of Accounting

We draw attention to Note 1 to the financial report, which describes the basis of accounting. The financial report has been prepared for the purpose of fulfilling the directors' financial reporting responsibilities under the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012. As a result, the financial report may not be suitable for another purpose. Our opinion is not modified in respect of this matter.

Other Information

The directors are responsible for the other information. The other information obtained at the date of this auditor’s report is included in the Directors’ Report (but does not include the financial report and our auditor’s report thereon).

Our opinion on the financial report does not cover the other information and accordingly we do not express any form of assurance conclusion thereon.

In connection with our audit of the financial report, our responsibility is to read the other information and, in doing so, consider whether the other information is materially inconsistent with the financial report or our knowledge obtained in the audit or otherwise appears to be materially misstated.

If, based on the work we have performed on the other information obtained prior to the date of this auditor’s report, we conclude that there is a material misstatement of that other information, we are required to report that fact. We have nothing to report in this regard.

Responsibilities of Directors for the Financial Report

The directors of the company are responsible for the preparation of the financial report that gives a true and fair view and have determined that the basis of preparation described in Note 1 to the financial report is appropriate to meet the requirements of the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012 and is appropriate to meet the needs of the members. The directors' responsibility also includes such internal control as the directors determine necessary to enable the preparation of a financial report that gives a true and fair view and is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In preparing the financial report, the directors are responsible for assessing the company’s ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing, as applicable, matters related to going concern and using the going concern basis of accounting unless the directors either intend to liquidate the company or to cease operations, or have no realistic alternative but to do so.

Auditor’s Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Report

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial report as a whole is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor’s report that includes our opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of the financial report.

As part of an audit in accordance with the Australian Auditing Standards, we exercise professional judgement and maintain professional scepticism throughout the audit. We also:

- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial report, whether due to fraud or error, design and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control.
- Obtain an understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company’s internal control.
- Evaluate the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates and related disclosures made by the directors.
• Conclude on the appropriateness of the directors’ use of the going concern basis of accounting and, based on the audit evidence obtained, whether a material uncertainty exists related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the Company’s ability to continue as a going concern. If we conclude that a material uncertainty exists, we are required to draw attention in our auditor’s report to the related disclosures in the financial report or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify our opinion. Our conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of our auditor’s report. However, future events or conditions may cause the Company to cease to continue as a going concern.

• Evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the financial report, including the disclosures, and whether the financial report represents the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.

We communicate with the directors regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control that we identify during our audit.

We also provide the directors with a statement that we have complied with relevant ethical requirements regarding independence, and to communicate with them all relationships and other matters that may reasonably be thought to bear on our independence, and where applicable, related safeguards.
